ABSTRACT

METHOD AND DEVICE FOR MAPPING CONTROL CHARACTERS

Control characters that are elements of a hypertext markup language are mapped by reading first data and locating predetermined control characters in the first data. The control characters are used to map the first data onto second data according to a predetermined parameter.